The presents study shall help to clarify the decision-making processes within and outside the European This book provides an analysis of the European Union's Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) towards Latin America and the prospects of the "strategic partnership" between the two regions. Complementary to other textbooks on the subject, the study highlights biregional positions and perceptions based on numerous expert interviews and panels in Europe and the Americas. It will be discussed whether the EU's CFSP towards the region has been successful and if there actually is a strategic partnership between the European Union and Latin America. Finally, policy recommendations shall inspire a new debate on the relations between the two regions.
