Description

'The authors advance our understanding of the role of non-state actors in global governance. Not only do they empirically investigate the role of public-private-type 2 partnerships systematically, they also critically consider their role in mitigating global governance deficits and their accountability in global governance.'

- Peter M. Haas, University of Massachusetts Amherst, US

The 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg is remembered mainly for the promotion of a novel form of global governance: the so-called 'partnerships for sustainable development'. This book provides a first authoritative assessment of partnerships for sustainable development, ten years after the Johannesburg Summit.

The extensive research builds on an exclusive Global Sustainability Partnerships Database and a series of in-depth qualitative case studies. Key questions studied in this book include the overall effectiveness and influence of partnerships, their geographical, functional and organizational scope, and their legitimacy.
